Our men, naving crossed the river, were posted behind the railroad monur. The iron-clad train having been disabled, could give the infantry no assistance, and the fire became so deadly that the large portion of our men were ordered to take the train and withdraw it to Cumberland. Captain Cross, a upposing Colonel Stough to be on board, pushed off, but the Colonel remained with a squad and repaired to the block-house, in which in had previously placed 40 mon, and held the block-house for an hour and a mai, in otwithstanding the rebel shells were knocking it to pieces over their bands.

And were Buell and McClellan now in command they would both be precisely where were the first year of the contest. How dould more carry on a war for which they had no more heart than Baell here confesses to? Faugh! It is sickening to read it, and to think how we were chested and fooled.

Buell's letter comes in good time. It precisely meets the cash of those who are still talking about this "Aboliton war;" and insisting upon so conducting it as not to burit the rebellion. We had his illustration two years ago; now we have the text which it explains. Both are best together, and will help us to understand the questions concerned in the present canvass.

The There is but one point of concern, we apprehend, in the delay of Gen. Bherman to finish up Bood and take Atlanta. There are rumons of a diversion of a part of Lee's army to Georgia; and though the world is in ignorance as to Lee's ability to spare any troops for such a purpose, it is possible that all most surplishes from England; and it seems to have been expected in that quarter by last advices that such a movement was on fool. It is possible that all such givings out, at home and abroad, are only born of the occasion; that such a movement was on fool. It is possible that all such givings out, at home and abroad, are only born of the occasion; that such a movement was on fool. It is possible that all such givings out, at home and abroad, are only born of the occasion; that seeing Atlanta on the eve of capture, all eyes should naturally turn to the only quarter whence, if anywhere, help must come. Whether Lee has any men to spare loof such as purpose, is a question by itself. We do not believe he has; and, if any considerable force has been sent to Georgia, we should expect to see the mistake demonstrated. If General Lee can keep 25,000 men foreging down the Shenandoah, and spare 26,000 more to helieve he has; and, if any considerable force has been sent to Georgia, we should expect to see the mistake demonstrated. The rebels by holding Baldwin were enabled to send to their armies in Georgia and claewhere large droves of beeves. Of course, this supply will now in a great neasure be cut off. The rebels had also been using the Cadar Keys railroad to transport the cargoss of blockaders into the interior. That traffic is also stopped. As a military point, Baldwin is a very important point to hold.

E RALKROAD CAPTURE.

Since writing the above, authentic information has been received of the capture on the railroad, between Baldwin and Fermandina, of a locomotive and seven cars—four box and three pistform. All the cars are in good condition. The locomotive was sightly out of order, but it can be assilv and readily repaired and put into use. This is decidedly an important capture, and reflects credit upon those who had the matter in charge.
